the MATERIAL

Only the finest 500 million year old slate from our quarry in North Wales is used in the production of Slateware, hewn from the famous Penrhyn Quarry. Welsh slate deposits at Penrhyn were laid in the Cambrian and late Ordovician periods and through the centuries have been transformed through heat and pressure into this unique, beautiful stone.

Welsh slate has been expertly 'split' and finished by the craftsmen in North Wales for hundreds of years, being used for roofing and architectural applications because of its superb practical qualities, unique texture and sophisticated hues.

Welsh Slate is the world's leading manufacturer of high quality roofing slate, architectural and aggregate slate products, providing slate for heritage, prestigious and high-end projects worldwide for hundreds of years.
